Japanese Arts and Culture Vol. 2

Fascinating Japanese Decorative Arts

Since ancient times, art crafts have developed depending on both the materials available and people's needs. Thus crafts that have become "art" are often intrinsically familiar objects closely linked to daily life and household objects.

In this lecture, you will be introduced to world-renowned Japanese national treasures and art craftworks that are housed in art galleries or museums. We will discuss how these historic art craftworks are an extension of the life of people at the time, whilst still having a real connection to the modern lifestyle. You will also find out about works of many of Tokyo Geidai alumni who represent the forefront of Japanese decorative arts, including ceramics, Urushi (lacquer ware), metals work, textiles, glass, and woodworks.
